What: California wants to fight climate change and get more people to drive cars that run on clean fuels. If you drive an all-electric or plug-in hybrid electric vehicle*, you may be eligible to receive an Electric Vehicle Climate Credit.

Amount: Last year, up to a $500** SDG&E® bill credit was given to drivers that applied.

When: Enrollment starts in March. To receive the credit, your vehicle must be registered in California and within SDG&E's service area as of May 31, 2019.

Where to apply: Review the qualifications and apply for the credit at sdge.com/EVCC.

Are you on the best pricing plan?

Remember, you can pay less at the plug with an EV Time-of-Use pricing plan. Prices are lowest when you program your vehicle to charge from midnight to 6 a.m. Visit sdge.com/EVrates to learn more.

*The credit is only for electric vehicles registered at a residence AND that can be driven on a highway. Electric commercial fleet vehicles, golf carts and scooters are not eligible.

**The Electric Vehicle Climate Credit amount varies based on the number of applicants in a given year. SDG&E® makes no guarantees regarding the amount of this year's credit. 2019 is the final year this credit will be available.
